

7 Days in Dubai: Luxury, Culture, and Modern Wonders Tour

Dubai is a city that prides itself on its opulence and extravagance. Visitors to Dubai can indulge in some of the world's finest shopping at the Dubai Mall, home to over 1,200 stores, or stay in one of the city's luxurious hotels, such as the Burj Al Arab or Atlantis, The Palm. And with its reputation for world-class dining, visitors can indulge in everything from high-end Michelin-starred cuisine to traditional Emirati dishes. Whether it's a relaxing day on the beach or a desert safari, Dubai is the ultimate destination for those looking to experience the finer things in life.

Public Transportation in Dubai

As the city of the future, Dubai is well-connected by efficient public transport that helps locals and tourists to navigate the city, conveniently and inexpensively.

Metro

Famous for its fully automated rail system and driverless trains, the Metro is the first public transport choice in Dubai, fast, modern, and easy to use.

Bus

Reach most of Dubai landmarks and connects the majority of the attractions. It is less frequent than the Metro but still very reliable and relatively cheap.

Taxi

Very easy to find in the city, especially near the main attractions.

Abras

Sort of traditional wooden water-taxis, the best way to cross Dubai Creek.

Please note that in Dubai, women have different sitting arrangements. On the bus, they sit in front seats of the buses, and on the Metro and Tram, they have special cabins. There are also "Pink Taxis" driven by women and for women and families only.

More information about Dubai's public transportation, including travel cards and updated rates, can be found at Dubai's Roads Transport Authority.
